

ENTERTAINMENT LAWYER • CEO • INFLUENTIAL SPEAKER

Amy Oraefo

is an entertainment lawyer, CEO, and influential speaker.

Amy Oraefo is an entertainment lawyer, consultant, and influential speaker. She is dedicated to the outreach and education of entrepreneurs and creatives.

As the owner and founder of Amy Oraefo, P.C., a boutique law firm, Amy serves as counsel for established entrepreneurs, entertainers, and content creators. She has negotiated millions in client deals in connection with brands such as iHeart Media, Kobalt Music, Universal Music Group, Revolt, United Masters, Meta, SpringHill Entertainment, Viacom, Puma, L'Oreal, and NFLPA to name a few. Ms. Oraefo is dedicated to advocating for her clients both nationally and internationally and she has a passion to assist in the growth and protection of their respective brands.

In addition to devoting time to skillfully manage her law firm and serve as an Adjunct Professor, Amy is a member of the Recording Academy and she formerly served on the Board of Governors for the organization. As the previous co-founder and CEO of a music publishing company, Amy has spent almost ten (10) years working with and advocating for artists and songwriters, specifically in Nigeria. Currently, Amy is also a global consultant, lawyer, and advisor for artists within the United States and in various countries throughout the continent of Africa.

Amy Said So®

Working with Amy is always a pleasure. From my days at A3C Festival & conference to now at UnitedMasters. She is filled with knowledge as it regards to entertainment law and knows how to translate it to the audience she is speaking to."

RYAN HASLAM, Head of Talent Relations at UnitedMasters + Program Director at Selectcon
